Snakes can eat frogs.

A green parakeet is perched on a branch of a tree with large, palmately lobed leaves. Below the bird are two bird nests, each constructed from a thick layer of mud and lined with soft, white, fibrous material. The background is a soft-focus green landscape.

Birds can eat seeds.

Elephants can eat plants.

A close-up photograph of a bright green snake with a yellow ring around its eye, consuming a brown insect. The snake's mouth is open, and the insect is being held inside. The background is dark and out of focus, showing some green foliage and a textured rock surface.

Lizards can eat bugs.

Otters can eat fish.

A giant panda is sitting on the ground in a natural habitat, surrounded by bamboo and fallen leaves. The panda is holding a piece of bamboo in its mouth and is in the process of eating it. The panda's black and white fur is clearly visible. The background consists of green bamboo stalks and a ground covered with brown, dry leaves.

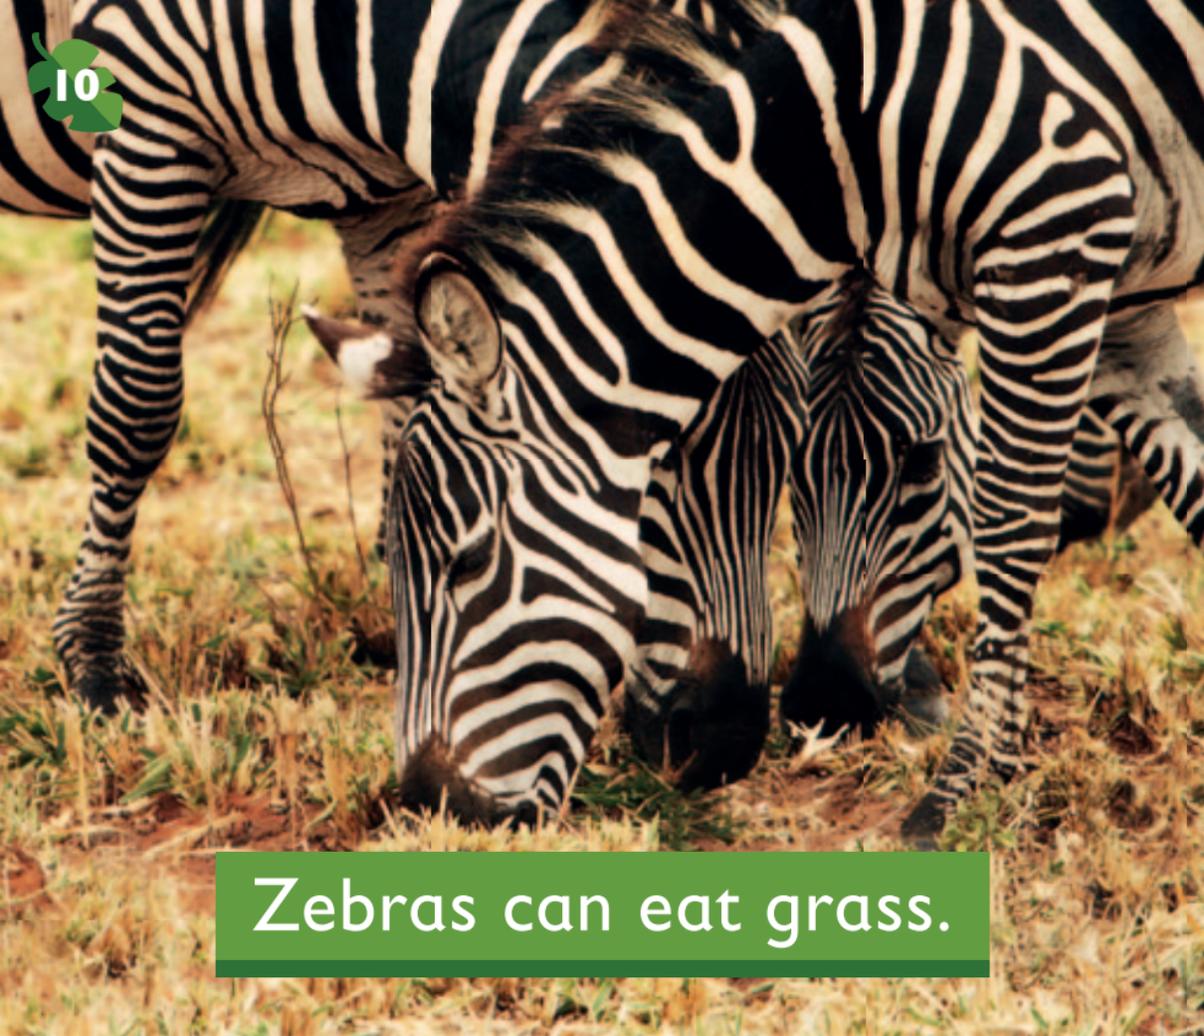

Pandas can eat bamboo.

Monkeys can eat fruit.

Giraffes can eat trees.

A close-up photograph of several zebras grazing on dry, yellowish-brown grass in a savanna setting. The zebras' black and white stripes are prominent. The focus is on the heads and necks of the animals as they feed.

Zebras can eat grass.

A lioness stands in a dry, grassy savanna, looking towards the left. In the foreground, a zebra carcass is visible, with its ribs and spine exposed. Another lioness is partially visible in the background, near the carcass.

Lions can eat zebras.

Ants can eat plants.
